When you think of overcoming adversity and making dreams come true, think of Jaimie Engle. After her publisher disappeared a month before release date, Jaimie Engle was forced to launch her first novel on her own. She has faced an upward battle in publishing with incredible victories along the way to include prestigious awards, brick and mortar book signings, and sharing the stage with some of the industry's biggest names in children's books. Working with two agents, two publishers, and indie publishing over a dozen titles gives Jaimie insight into every aspect of writing, publishing, and selling books. And while her career began at UCF Film School for Screenwriting, in 2021, she fell back into her first love of writing feature films and for television with legal representation, films in development, and tv pilots under consideration within the first six months.
